Subject: Statement of Purpose — Student Visa (Subclass 500), Dependent Applicant, Spouse of Sanjana Akter Roshni, Master of Information Technology (Course Code 62510), University of Western Australia

Dear Visa Officer,

My name is Hasibul Hoque, passport number A03116434. I am a Bangladeshi citizen and the husband of Sanjana Akter Roshni, who has been offered a place in the Master of Information Technology program, course code 62510, at the University of Western Australia in Perth. I am applying for a Student Visa Subclass 500 as her dependent spouse. This statement covers my background, why I need to accompany her, and why our long-term future is firmly in Bangladesh.

About Me

I completed my Bachelor of Science in Computer Science and Engineering from Ahsanullah University of Science and Technology in 2022. Since February 2023 I have been working as a Software Engineer at Business Accelerate BD Ltd in Dhaka, mainly on Java backend development, microservice architecture, and Spring Boot. Over this time I have built and maintained production software for major banking and government clients, and picked up real experience in enterprise authentication, database design with PostgreSQL and Oracle, and distributed systems design.

Some of the bigger projects I have worked on include the Bhutan Integrated Revenue Management System for the Royal Government of Bhutan, the City Bank Liability Workflow here in Bangladesh, and core banking integrations for Meghna Bank's Liability Management Service. My technical skills cover Java, Spring Boot, Spring Security, Microservice Architecture, Docker, Hibernate and so on. This work has given me a solid place in Bangladesh's tech industry.

My Relationship with Sanjana and Why I Am Going With Her

Sanjana and I got married on 11 August 2023 and have built our home together at 324/A, East Rampura, Dhaka. We are also professional peers in a way, she is a skilled Full Stack Developer with real academic ambition. When she decided to pursue her master's at UWA, I supported that decision completely, both emotionally and practically.

I want to be upfront about the practical side of this. A two-year postgraduate program in a different country is a serious undertaking. Sanjana has never lived or travelled on her own outside Bangladesh. Setting up housing, managing the household, adjusting to a new culture, handling finances, all of that adds up to a heavy load on top of full-time study.

By going with her as a dependent, my main role is to take care of the household and the daily practical things, so she can focus fully on her coursework without being pulled in different directions while also trying to resettle alone. This is what lets her keep up with the academic standard UWA expects without burning out on logistics.

My Plans in Perth

My role in Australia is purely supportive. Everything I do there will be built around keeping our home life stable while Sanjana is studying.

I know the dependent visa allows work, and I do plan to use that, mainly to keep my own skills current and make sure our household is fully self-sufficient without putting any pressure on our sponsors or the local system. But my schedule will stay flexible around her academic commitments first. I have no intention of enrolling in any course myself, and no interest in pursuing permanent residency. My career, my professional network, everything I am building long-term stays here in Bangladesh.

Strong Ties to Bangladesh and Intent to Return

My reasons for coming back to Bangladesh once Sanjana finishes are real, not something I am saying just to satisfy a visa requirement.

I have spent 3 years building specialised experience in Bangladesh's banking and fintech technology sector. What I know about banking domain like City Bank and Meghna Bank's systems is valuable specifically within Bangladesh's financial infrastructure, and that is not something that transfers easily elsewhere. Going back means stepping into a market that is actively expanding, where I already have a professional network and where demand for senior backend engineers is growing fast.

Our entire family, both sets of parents and everyone close to us, lives permanently in Bangladesh. We have no relatives in Australia and no history of migration there. I hold Mudaraba Term Deposits in Bangladesh, and Sanjana has a flat formally allotted to her through a deed of agreement in Dhaka, which is genuinely our future home, not just something on paper.

Bangladesh's Smart Bangladesh 2041 vision is driving real growth in the tech sector through national digital transformation. When Sanjana comes back with an internationally recognised master's degree from one of the most reputed university in the world like University of Western Australia, and combined with my own continued experience, we will be well placed to follow through on something we have been planning: co-founding a software startup focused on enterprise software for fintech, real estate and healthcare in Bangladesh. Sanjana's father's business expertise and my professional network will help us execute our plan, making our journey much easier and more convenient in a way we won't be able to find outside Bangladesh.

I have no history of immigration violations, have never had a visa refused, and have no travel history outside Bangladesh at all. This trip is entirely about supporting my wife through this stage of her education.

Financial Position

Our time in Australia is funded by three sponsors: Sanjana's father, Md. Shahadat Hossain Shaheen, my mother, Mrs. Nasima Akter, and my father, Md. Momtazul Hoque. Together they hold verified liquid assets of approximately AUD 752,893 and combined annual income of approximately AUD 60,607. This comfortably covers Sanjana's tuition, our joint living costs, and travel for the full two years. Our documented funds sit well above the minimum requirement set by the Department of Home Affairs, so financial vulnerability is not a concern here.

Conclusion

I am an established Software Engineer going to Perth for one clear reason to support my wife through her postgraduate studies. We have solid financial backing, deep personal and economic ties to Dhaka, and a clear plan to come back together once she graduates.

I respectfully ask that this dependent visa application be considered favourably. I am fully committed to following all conditions attached to the Student Visa Subclass 500 for the entire duration of our stay.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Yours Sincerely,
Hasibul Hoque
